

Pronoun Case: Subjects and ObjectsSubjective Case

I
you he she
it we they who

Objective Case

me
you
him
her
it
us
them whom

Examples

1. I will save the documents for him. (I is the subject. Him is an indirect object.)
2. They surprised her with the party. (They is the subject. Her is a direct object.)
3. Melissa and he will attend the ceremony. (He is part of the subject.)
4. That conversation took place between Mario and me. (Me is part of the object of the preposition.)
5. We students should stand up for our rights. (We is the subject.)
6. The government should not penalize us taxpayers. (Us is the direct object.)
7. Gina doesn't know who sent her the Valentine's Day card. (Who is a subject. Here it can be replaced by I, he, she, we, they: He sent her . . .)
8. Choose friends whom you can trust. (Whom is an object. Here it can be replaced by them: them you can trust/you can trust them).
9. No one knows the rules as well as she. (Subject: No one knows the rules as well as she knows the rules.)

Exercises: Choose the correct pronoun in each sentence.

1. Later that evening, (her / she) and her husband went out for dinner.
2. The coaches aren't sure (who / whom) will receive the MVP Award.
3. The professor accused Dora and (I / me) of cheating.
4. The owner told (us / we) employees that we had exceeded expectations.
5. Percy and (he / him) will present their research results at the conference.
6. She resembles a person (who /whom) I have met before.
7. The park ranger said that Brett and (I / me) should leave immediately.
8. We are better writers than (them / they).
9. (Us / We) nature-lovers signed the petition against the construction of the condominiums.
10. As usual, this will be a contest between (her / she) and (I / me).